A Designer's Dossier

- What motivates and energizes you? Genuine human connection. Firstly, with my team. They are the engine that drives my company and having the opportunity to work with these inspiring women gets me out of bed each day. Secondly, my clients. Their lives and stories are the fuel that propels us forward. When we truly connect with our clients, we're at the epicenter of our inspiration and energy.
- Who is your female design icon? I am charmed by Olga Polizzi. Her reign at Rocco Forte has resulted in some of my favorite hotels in the world, including Hotel Savoy in Florence and Brown's Hotel in London. And her personal style is a love letter to the architecture of the buildings she buys, which she then infuses with the perfect blend of whimsy, warmth and antiques.

“MY EVER-EVOLVING ARTISTRY AND CRAFT ARE A DIRECT REFLECTION OF MY PERSONAL GROWTH.”

Top An exquisite blend of textured rugs, bone-inlay tables, Asian ceramics, antique pieces and custom upholstered seating create a layered look in this 1926 Spanish Colonial Revival home. Left Featuring double islands and wrapped in custom alder cabinetry, the kitchen in Thomas' own home serves as both a food prep area and hangout space. Right Restored to its original splendor, this historic home's entry boasts antique leaded glass, rare diato magnesite checkerboard flooring, a deep walnut antique chest of drawers and custom hand-forged iron light fixtures.

An abiding sense of style and purpose, a comprehensive set of skills and an air of whimsy perfectly describe the most influential women of design. Enter Courtney Thomas. Clients and peers within the industry are drawn to Courtney's enduring wit and joyful nature. As Principal at her award-winning, namesake firm, she's been creating homes that are beautiful, livable and inspiring for more than a decade. "A genuine appreciation for form and function" is what Courtney says governs her approach to curating rich and sophisticated spaces. "Our every move is about developing something that feels unique and personal to the client," Courtney explains. "We focus on tailoring to a high level of customization." Every project in the Courtney Thomas Design catalog is layered with textiles, honored antiques, modern utility and true harmony, which results in spaces that feel grounded and expressive.
